Nokori

by Giopato & Coombes on view at Paris Design Week 2026

Following its presentation at Milano Design Week 2026, Nokori makes its Parisian debut at Paris Design Week 2026.
Giopato & Coombes presents Nokori in a site-specific installation exploring the relationship between object, matter and space.
In Nokori, each piece stands as an autonomous presence: volumes that shift between geometric tension and organic softness, where the material interplay of glass creates stratified, layered surfaces. Light is held within the material, tracing its contours, inhabiting its form — becoming an intimate, guarded structure rather than a mere finishing touch.
For its debut at the Giopato & Coombes gallery in Paris, Nokori takes on a new dimension: the installation invites viewers into a close encounter, where the design narrative of each sculpture unfolds in detail — from the glassmaking process to compositional choices — revealing the depth of a practice that unites material research with artistic vision.
The installation composes a silent choreography of relationships, where light becomes a presence that lingers well beyond the immediate encounter.
Nokori marks a further step in the studio's research, affirming matter as a means of building presence and giving space a deeper sense of inhabitation.
