

URBANNATURECULTUREAMSTERDAM

OUR STORY

Sunrise or sunset, the warm, earthy tones of UNC's glass bowl will bring color to your day. Handmade in Egypt, the land of sun god Ra, it's a traditional art that's been done for thousands of years, with glass vessels found in the tomb of Tuthmosis III – around 1400 B.C.. Today's interpretation is a colorful and modern bowl with the ocean as its theme.

Continuously looking for environmental-friendly ways to produce the things we love – UNC made this beautiful, round basket from corn husk. One of nature's wonders.

The springtime feel of renewal and hope, is represented in UNC's Flower Fruit bowl. A unique and soft-green stoneware eye-catcher, making a grand statement.

Whether it's a stormy dark day and you're locked inside with a good book and a hot chocolate, or the sun is shining and luring you out, one look at the Binding Leaf on this Stationary and you know exactly why you've got a reason to smile. Made from cotton remnants, this stationary invites you to share all your happy stories and future dreams.

In a world that's driven by machinery and automation, sunny Portugal continues its ancient old tradition of hand-made pottery. Each of our Portuguese UNC Vases has been made by hand, making them one-of-a-kind. Though it brings you a glimpse of the past and sets forth tradition, its beauty lies in the urban character of today. The soft and inviting white clay makes this one stand out in your table setting.

