Jean de la Fontaine, 1670

They have resonated in our memories for so long. The wolf's cruelty when faced with the lamb's innocence, the cunning fox who tricks the crow with flattery, the monkey and the cat who seem to be united in their misdeeds and yet turn out to be veritable false friends...

This new gallery of portraits is inspired by the court of the Château de Versailles, where, in the King's shadow, an elegant and refined crowd live – characters with unlimited ambitions...

A new collection of 6 mural trays which reveal our own paradoxes through their humanity.
