

Black oak – extraordinary beauty!

It is said to be more rare than a diamond, it is also called „Polish ebony. We are talking about black oak. It is an extremely valuable and rare material which is a great inspiration for furniture makers. In Tsarist Russia, owning black oak furniture was punishable by death.

The only people who could enjoy this luxury without worrying about their own lives were the ruler's family. Today, furniture made of this wood can be owned by anyone, if the affluence allows it.

MORE RARE THAN DIAMOND

Many of us probably have not heard of black oak. It is not a tree that grows in the forest, but an extremely rare resource that is usually dug up in gravel pits, peat bogs or rivers. Underground, it can last from several hundred to several thousand years! Experts estimate that its deposits around the world are smaller than diamond deposits, as this raw material can be processed for about 10,000 years and, consequently, its prices can be exorbitant.

THOUSANDS OF YEARS OF HISTORY

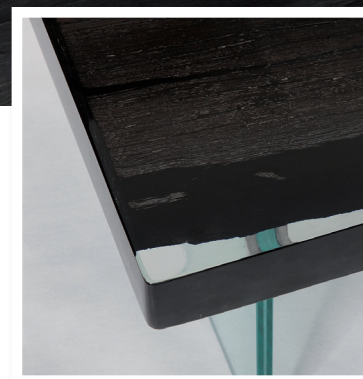

In order to become a raw material suitable for furniture production, oak wood must be deposited in the ground or under water for at least several hundred years, however, this time is much longer in the case of the Polish raw material. Under these conditions, the tannins contained in oak, in reaction with iron salts dye the wood to a characteristic black colour and this causes from 6% to 17% of its structure to be fossil.

PROCESSING WITH PASSION AND HEART

Black oak is a rare form of wood, comparable to the most expensive tropical deciduous species. It requires special expertise and knowledge concerning its processing.

We create every product with passion and heart. We design and make furniture by hand as if we were doing it for ourselves.

The wood is polished until high gloss is obtained, it is not oiled or varnished. Each piece of furniture is well thought out and designed to ensure the highest quality of raw material. Tables and coffee tables are made from it. The worktop combines black oak in the form of an exposed plank and the crystalline epoxy resin that surrounds it, thus reflecting the greatest respect for nature. Epoxy resin is a very durable material and can be renewed many times in a very simple way.

UNIQUE AND INIMITABLE

Each table from the Timbart studio is 100% handmade and designed for individual order. Due to this, the customer has a sense of having a unique exhibit. Each table designed by us can have any size and shape, according to the most daring requirements of the customer. Tops are mounted on a base made of tempered glass or steel. This combination gives the furniture an extraordinary beauty and unique character.

CERTIFICATE OF BEAUTY

Each product made of black oak is unique and one of a kind. Our customers can be sure that their furniture is unique. Each table, which was designed in our studio, is provided with a certificate confirming the age of the wood.

MADE IN POLAND

The product is made entirely in Poland. We have our own sawmill and drying facilities, thanks to which the entire production process is comprehensively implemented by our company: acquisition of raw material, transport, sawing, seasoning, drying, and the production process. Our tables are suitable for any interior design. In dining room, office, living room. Our furniture is a beautiful piece of equipment in every place.

