The Dutch furniture brand Studio HENK launches a new collection of customisable furniture at Maison & Objet in Paris. The new furniture collection, like alle pieces from Studio HENK, is made for everyday life with simple, functional pieces that can be customised.

Co-founder Okke Albers: "We understand the need for furniture that is beautiful, but also practical. They have to fit both your interior and your lifestyle." With the possibility to customise your furniture, you can create a piece that is exactly what you need.

Back to basics

The Base dining table is a simple design that highlights the craftsmanship with which our furniture is made. For example, the table is made up of various wood joints that can only be made with precision. When you take a closer look at the frame, the wood joints become visible. This visibility is characteristic of Studio HENK's designs. Designer Xander Albers: "There's beauty in how a piece of furniture is made. Rather than hiding the process, we highlight it." The unique wood joints add character to the design. At the same time, oak wood turns it into an accessible furniture piece that can easily be placed in any interior. The Base is also available as a dining bench.

Simple and functional

Modulo is a comfortable modular sofa. The thin armrests give the sofa a light expression, characteristic of Studio HENK's designs. The central steel legs, that have a T-shape that is similar to the frame of the Base, add lightness to the design. The sofa consists of different elements, enabling you to design your own version of the Modulo.

The sofa can be perfectly combined with Otto, a simple, multifunctional pouffe. Otto has an oak base - a reference to the Giuseppe, a roomy sofa that we designed - and soft upholstery. Just as with our sofas, you can customise Otto to your taste so it will perfectly fit your seating area. Otto is available in two sizes.
