CREATING SPACES - AW19

This season our focus has been creating beautiful spaces with the new collection - whereas the styling of the private home has been in the spotlight the last season, we now take a step back and look at the broader picture where the new interior design and small furniture set the frame for bigger recreational spaces such as hotels, spas and restaurants. We take you on a design journey where you can explore the versatile collection. The new Sino tables can make beautiful statements together or on their own and with different bases and luxurious marble tops. We have also expanded the Fumi table collection with a bigger and lower table with a subtle smoked glass top and beautiful subtle frame as the rest of the series. The Stilla book end is also a new piece in 3 different colours and can be used to keep your favorite books – or just as a sculptural object. The success of our Globe flower pots has also resulted in an even bigger black flowerpot for bigger indoor or outdoor plants.

We have also added a new Vivero watering can which now comes in the same iconic shape in black plated stainless steel. The Curva series has also gained a new family member in the shape of an umbrella holder which also comes in silver, brass and black like the rest of the popular Curva series. Another new “aytm” in the collection is the white Luceo lamp which is a new exciting addition to the minimalistic Luceo lamp collection that consists of a floor lamp, 2 different pendants, a wall lamp and a table lamp. The classic white colour will give a more Nordic look and is very easy to incorporate in any room. With this collection we wanted to cater to the bigger spaces where the interior décor really makes a difference and a memorable impact on the guests as they explore the ambiance and relaxing atmosphere that comes with the recreational spaces. Here our minds are more susceptible to new impressions, which is why AW19 is all about perception and stimulation of our senses.
