

Sustainable bamboo blinds give the home an edge

As a beautiful and sustainable alternative other products on the market, Color & Co offers beautiful bamboo roller blinds in Scandinavia.

Imagine a plant that can grow over a meter in a day, while converting 35% more CO₂ into oxygen than an average tree. Such a sustainable wonder plant is bamboo, and it can beautify your window sections and walls or screens for the sun on the patio. As the only people in Denmark, Color & Co offers designed bamboo roller blinds.

Strong sustainable material

In China, bamboo has been known for millennia as an extremely sustainable material that can be used for everything from house building and crafts to instruments and... yes, blinds. Ancient Chinese hardly knew that bamboo has a record in producing oxygen to the atmosphere. But we can enjoy that today, where the CO₂ accounts are of great importance to our planet. In turn, they knew very well that bamboo has galloping growths. We can also enjoy that today as timber is a scarce resource. Bamboo only needs to grow for 4-6 years before it can be harvested, while an oak tree in comparison can take 50 years to grow big.

A classic in a new design

Danes who remember the 1970s may well remember the classic thin bamboo roller blind. Color & Co has selected a range of products to bring them back to a more modern look.

You can choose the blind that gives your home the edge. With thick, thin or mixed slats. The curtains have a coverage from 25 percent up to 98 percent. They are also available in colours such as nature, brown, gray, white and black - and they are either stained, painted or natural. Short blinds for the window or long ones for doors or room dividers.

"We are pleased to provide everyone with a beautiful alternative to the wooden blind. A blind that give the home a personal fingerprint, we believe in sustainability and natural materials in a Nordic design "says Sofie Flachs Melson, who runs Color & Co together with her sister Rikke Flachs.
