

Barbotine: the cultural object and the gastronomy

Cultivating objects, preserving their deep sense rooted in the local culture, transmitting it to young apprentices represents the spirit of Barbotine.

The cultural object is combined daily in the form of pottery enriched knowledge of the territory of Aubagne, land of clay for more than 22 centuries, where techniques have passed from worker to worker.

These pottery live today as yesterday in the kitchen, spend the oven on the table and compete in the triptych: France, Gastronomy, Pottery. Thus, the recipes of the simmered dishes accompany as Daubières, Mortiers, Tians, Cassoles and dishes for oven...

Passing from authenticity to the object is the goal pursued by Philippe Beltrando, potter in Provence, in Aubagne.

A true anchorage of his collection of objects in glazed earth in the models and the uses of the previous centuries. So the water pot will be named "pichet de barque" ou "cruche du pêcheur",
