

et al.

Textures, colors, sinuous and solid shapes: the new collection of Et al. on display at Maison & Objet speaks different languages, following as a leitmotiv a clever mix and match of contemporary geometries and nuances. Also this year the company participates in the reference Parisian fair for interior decoration and furniture and exhibits three new seats, the result of the great technical and aesthetic research and the extraordinary planning of international designers, such as: Ana Kraš, Andrea Anastasio, Philippe Nigro and Giovanni Levanti.

The new proposals, designed to furnish contract and commercial spaces of all kinds, constitute functional elements, designed to dialogue with the surrounding environment and relate to the people who live in it, satisfying simple and daily needs. Once again therefore, Et al. puts on stage good design, the fundamental driver of all its choices and the founding value of the brand that has been making seats and tables for the community and meeting spaces for over 60 years.

The designer of Et al. stand is Gianni Filindeu, the architect associated with the company in its evolutionary path and who has contributed to the rebranding of the brand. For the Paris fair he has designed an architecture with light and bright tones, in perfect stylistic continuity with that of last year, enriched by the discreet warmth of the wooden floor and the presence of cuts and incisions on the walls, which give a decisive character to the space.

Noodle Ana Kraš

Noodle is the metal side table designed by the young Serbian designer Ana Kraš. Its conical structure is made with thin but resistant vertical steel wires that bring to mind the yarns of the looms.

The loom can be turned upside down creating a table with a completely different look. The top made of sheet metal can be removed and also used as a practical tray.

Pillow Andrea Anastasio

The iconic Pillow pouf launched in 2018 and which has already won the hearts for its chameleon-like soul and the wise mix of colors, is now available both in the XL version, with large cushions that offer maximum relaxation, and in the variant with backrest padded, for those who instead seek the same comfort of a seat but do not give up on originality.

Ambit Giovanni Levanti

Engineered to meet different design needs, Ambit is a new customizable seating system, thanks to the presence of multiple modules available in different heights and sizes. Ideal for decorating collective spaces, waiting and welcoming places.

Shade Philippe Nigro

The Shade family presented at the Milan Design Week of 2018 is expanding with the introduction of the lounge chair with a generous seat and incredible comfort and ergonomics, despite the fact that the steel frame suggests something else.

Company profile

Et al., an evolution of the Metalmobil brand, produces chairs and tables for public gathering spaces: high-quality solutions, designed to improve people's lifestyle and their relationship to their living space. The many collections in the catalogue come out of a combination of traditional craftsmanship, industrial innovation and good design and include products developed with international designers, capable of giving new forms to the requirements of contemporary living. Et al. is a brand of IFI S.p.A., a leading industrial group providing furnishings and technology for the Food&Beverage sector, winner of two Compasso d'Oro design awards in 2014 and 2018.
