

A SEASON THAT EXTENDS OUTDOORS

WITH THE ARRIVAL of Spring comes not only light, but outdoor living, all day long. The porch, patio, terrace, garden and park are now our lush, green living room. This is the season that lets the outdoors become a natural extension of our homes.

Of course, this new, seasonal living room should be given the same kind of loving attention as your indoor space – decorated, accessorized and the table set with the same love and care as the rest of the year. There's something inviting and magical about the contrast between a carefully set outdoor table with linen, napkins, and proper plates and the wild and untamed, green nature surrounding it.

What's more, food just seems to taste better outdoors. Even a simple cup of coffee is richer and more delicious. Seeing friends and being together seems easier and comes more naturally; conversations flow better. Sleep is never as blissful as when you're basking in the shadow of a leafy tree or under the blue sky with a perfectly mowed lawn – or a meadow – as your mattress. If the weather allows, why not extend your bedroom outside? Make up a proper bed in your outdoor space with duvets, pillows, and Lexington bed linens in summery colors and textures as soft as a warm summer breeze.

Welcome to the season that extends outdoors.

All the best,
KRISTINA LINDHE
Creative Director and Founder.
