Our history

Alain Saint-Joanis have been designing and creating exceptional cutlery since 1876. Craftsmanship, skills and know-how have been passed on from father to son. Making cutlery has been in our DNA for several generations. We have turned this heritage into a passion, which we still share today as a family. We are proud to perpetuate an artistic craft, which provides our work with meaning and purpose. We were awarded the Living Heritage Enterprise (EPV) label in 2007, which rewards exceptional French know-how, skills and craftsmanship, and we are a member of the Atelier d'Art de France, a national federation of craft professionals.

Our state of mind

As craftsmen, we are passionate about using rare, noble and precious materials. We are also passionate about design, and objects which have a history and a soul. Timeless and refined, our cutlery collections are regularly updated to keep in step with our ever-changing, modern lifestyle. We can respond to any personalised requests and designs and are capable of producing a panoply of different products to your exact specifications. We believe that a knife, fork or spoon should not simply be a beautiful object. We want them to be functional as well as aesthetic. We use the most modern and innovative techniques to guarantee everyday use, adapted to withstand the aggressive dishwasher process.

Our products

Wooden handles in snakewood, ebony, boxwood, rosewood or olive wood. Silversmith quality pieces, 18/10 stainless steel, fine gold-plated. Knife blades made in special cutlery grade stainless steel, with silver-plated finishings. Every piece which leaves our workshop is unique and has been assembled and polished by hand.

Our clients

Alain Saint-Joanis products are to be found in prestigious establishments such as the Hôtel de Crillon in Paris, Pierre Gagnaire restaurants, the Bagatelle restaurant in Monaco, the Royal Mansour Hotel in Marrakech, the One and Only in Barhein and the Hotel Bel-Air in Los Angeles. We are also present in stores such as Bergdorf Goodman and Barneys in New York and Thomas Goode in London.
