

TULIPA

The story of a flower that becomes a ray of light

#Prandina #lightingstories

With the softness of a flower the Tulipa collection is born. A new story of light that revisits the typical suspended spotlight in an elegantly decorative tone, giving life to a versatile and modern suspension lamp.

The Barcelona based Khamai Studio wanted to write this transformation by identifying in Prandina the ideal partner, investing in new materials, special finishes and unusual shapes.

Imagine the flowery expanses of the Dutch territory, the changing colors and shapes of its famous tulips. From here we began to tell the light point, dressing it with an organic soul and a structured diffusion of light.

The cylindrical element, a fundamental part around which the lamp and its design are developed, guides the light downwards; it is wrapped in a double metal petal that opens slightly, leaving a glimpse of the internal structure.

A guardian petal of light

Tulipa, with the delicacy of its design, is told in a sinuous profile.

The study of materials and forms has allowed us to write an interesting tale of light that starts from a simple light bulb. Equipped with an E27 socket, Tulipa encloses and gives off a light directed downwards, able to illuminate in an intimate but punctual way and to furnish the surrounding environment. The six slits, carved in the central tube, create a play of light and reflections that intrigues and invites you to observe the lamp carefully.

The eight colour combinations have been designed to offer interesting unions and contrasts between opaque and glossy finishes, but the materials allow you to write numerous other unpublished chapters as well with custom colors on request. The external petal, white or black, is accompanied by a self-supporting fabric cable and a ceiling rose of the same colour. The combination with the internal tubular, in the precious gold, copper and black chrome finishes, provides a refined and elegant result; white maximizes a delicate or contrasting effect.

Tulipa, a minimal and elegant design that finds multiple expressions in different finishes, available for immediate delivery to tell new worldwide #lightingstories.

Prandina #LightingStories

Describing what Prandina has stood for since the very beginning is simple, we offer best-selling products and innovations in glassblowing techniques, we deliver and bring projects to life around the world. Describing what Prandina represents for someone who's worked and continues to work here to this day is much more complicated, it's a collection of emotions and feelings, of people and experiences, of knowledge and fulfilment. Every single product leaves our factory bearing all the passion that Sergio Prandina has put into every detail of his company since 1982. Every product is the culmination of creativity and of each employee's daily determination to improve their workflow. We all share in the enthusiasm of delivering a simply and truly beautiful product in the hands of our customers.

This is the greatest and most important of all the #lightingstories we want to tell.
