Our in-house product design team are always on the lookout for future trends in the giftware industry. To ensure their research is up-to-date, the team travel to all of the major tradeshows around the globe while also checking out the hottest new products online and on social media. Our designers then take this information and create brand new, eye-catching designs. This season they have focused on revisiting Puckator's most popular themes and updating them with new designs and styles. One of these themes is Dinosauria, which contains two different designs, ensuring a product or gift for every age. The junior design contains cute, colourful dinosaurs and sits alongside the grownups' more graphic and detailed design. Another area that has seen significant developments is Puckator's hugely popular Pick of the Bunch range. Using a perfect palette of bright, fresh colours, this range of products is sure to fit perfectly into every home.
