MAOMI's New Product: Stoneware ELEPHANT FEET

The Stoneware ELEPHANT FEET is based on the work of the porcelain artist we work with. He has been experimenting with celadon colours for over 20 years, researching their variations and reactions by modifying the composition of the minerals, the firing temperatures and the composition of the air. In this way, he achieves beautiful soft-matt and soft-glossy shades in all variations from sky blue to broken steel blue to earthy green, which form the basis of his artistic work.

The groups of multicoloured little pots he forms to test new glaze mixtures or variations and their interaction with the firing temperature and oxygen saturation form a poetic blue-green composition in the workshop. The interaction between the artist and the expertise of our producers has allowed us to recreate the vibrant multicolour and depth of the glazes and make them available for serial production.

In addition to the colour variations, the irregular shapes of ELEPHANT FEET reflect the workshop process of testing the glazes. In collaboration with the artist, we have further developed the shapes of the small, hand-potted test forms and transferred them to a series of cups, plates and bowls. The deliberate amorphous-organic randomness of this interplay of forms adds to the vibrant impression of ELEPHANT FEET.

ELEPHANT FEET in stoneware is available in eight shapes: three plate sizes, three bowls and two cups.
