Façade coverings

Thanks to the excellent performance of porcelain stoneware, the stoneware decorations in the Brickworks range are also the ideal choice for covering the exterior of any type of architectural construction, from public buildings and industrial complexes to residential buildings. Stoneware façade coverings offer important advantages for buildings in terms of thermal and acoustic insulation, eliminating the thermal bridges that cause heat dispersion and thus saving a significant amount of money. These façade coverings also make it possible to eliminate surface condensation and localised mould, improving the appearance of the building and maintaining its aesthetic and technical characteristics over the years. In addition, Bios Self Cleaning technology also offers significant advantages in terms of reducing maintenance times and costs, as well as making an effective contribution to improving air quality. The superhydrophilicity of the Bios Self Cleaning ceramic surface is able to eliminate the pollutants present in the air and break down the dirt that settles on the surface of the tiles, so that it can be washed away by rainwater.

Outdoor walls are thus enhanced by a sophisticated volume effect and an elegant weave of geometries embellished by the impact of the sun's ray during the day and the interplay of shadows after dark. A uniquely precious, modern, simple, sophisticated covering, able to evoke the emotions of a bygone age.
