FERROLUCE RETURNS TO MAISON & OBJET 2025

The Italian interior lighting brand will participate in the upcoming edition of the fair, from January 16 to 20, bringing the complete DECò collection to the city.

Romans d'Isonzo, 18 December 2024 – Ferroluce's much-anticipated return to Maison&Objet is here. The fair, held in the heart of Île-de-France, sets the stage for innovations and anticipates trends in interior lighting, design, and lifestyle.

An Italian brand specializing in the creation of lamps and lighting accessories, Ferroluce will bring its entire DECò collection to Paris, including the latest additions—Voilà, Éclair, Yakitori, and Habea—unveiled previously last September in the very city known as the heart of home decor.

These lamps are not just additions to the collection but true icons of Ferroluce's philosophy, which embraces the fusion of different visions and styles as a successful approach to enhancing ceramic materials—the beating heart of the brand's production. These are also the first products created in collaboration with external designers: Tommaso Caldera, a designer, educator, and editor for Elle Decor Italia, and Muka Design Lab, a Basque design duo renowned for their significant international collaborations.

The theme of this edition of Maison&Objet is SUR/REALITY, an invitation to explore the prolific vitality of a new Surrealism, capable of "crafting a narrative of new creative landscapes and products that are as surprising as they are desirable."

A narrative that Ferroluce fully embraces, with lamps that captivate through their unexpected nature, taking center stage in settings that invite the audience to rediscover beauty beyond traditional conventions. Lamps that transcend their role as mere technical elements to become objects of design, blending iconic shapes with innovative style. By stepping out of their comfort zone, they express a completely new language, solidifying Ferroluce's position as a distinctive player in the lighting market, celebrated for bringing the most authentic value of Made in Italy to the international stage.
