Gardeco Objects presents Morphosis by Studio Segers at Maison & Objet

Paris, September 2025 - Gardeco Objects proudly announces its collaboration with Belgian design studio Studio Segers, unveiling the new glass collection Morphosis at Maison & Objet 2025. Alongside this premiere, Gardeco Objects will also showcase new designs and colourways from its established designers, expanding its signature collections with fresh perspectives and bold nuances.

Morphosis is a series of three sculptural glass objects that explore a vase in different stages of transformation: from a recognisable vase shape to a form that appears almost molten. The series combines clear lines with soft curves, representing the delicate tension between gravity and matter. Morphosis is an ode to volatility and fluidity, and to the timeless beauty of glass. Each piece is carefully mouth-blown by the artisans of the Brazilian Studio Cá d'Oro, heirs to the Seguso family of Venetian glassmakers.

About Studio Segers

Studio Segers is a Belgian design studio that joins generations and disciplines. What began in 1989 with graphic designer Rita Westhovens and product designer Wim Segers, grew into a dynamic team of product designers, graphic designers, architects and interior designers. Each new family member - Bob Segers, Tom Fonteyn, Marjan Brants, Raf Segers, Chris-Laurenz Liesenborghs, Sonja Vrancken, Daniele Joosten, Dennis Houben - adds to the harmony within the studio and tells their story with form and material.

A chair, a building, a glass sculpture - Studio Segers is multidisciplinary, but guided by one principle: creating functional, down-to-earth designs that combine innovative techniques and sustainable materials with respect for craftsmanship, tradition and refined aesthetics.

As of 2025, Studio Segers and Gardeco Objects work together, bringing the studio's creations to a worldwide audience.
