

Points, Lignes et Plans

Introduction of our Brand

By Ai Ito, Representative

Points, Lignes et Plans means "Dots, Lines and Surfaces" in English.

The craftsmanship of the "Dots, Lines and Surfaces" brand is like the way “dots connect to form lines, lines expand to form surfaces, and individuals come together to create a warm and connected society.”

"Dots, Lines and Surfaces" is a brand that cherishes this philosophy and weaves it into its creations.

The signature product of the "Dots, Lines and Surfaces" brand is "Sashiko." "Sashiko" is known as "Boro" which is a traditional Japanese clothing and embroidery technique born 500 years ago for warmth and reinforcement.

It emerged within the Japanese culture of valuing materials, where even small pieces of fabric were not discarded but sewn together for reuse, ensuring longevity.

Just like the warm, connected society we aspire to build, we stitch fabrics together and apply “Sashiko” to create products that bring warmth to the heart.

To help artist with disability connect with society, we share our Sashiko products with the world.

“Sashiko” works by “Dots, Lines and Surfaces” brand is based on the following three points.

- Connecting tradition and culture to the future.
- Don't throw it away, connect it and make use of it.
- Connect with society without leaving anyone behind.

Connecting tradition and culture to the future.

The works of “Dots, Lines and Surfaces” are made using the techniques of the traditional Japanese craft, SASHIKO.

The history of sashiko is the very essence of the SDGs.

With respect to the rags that have been woven over time, we aim to create designs that bring a smile to your face and make you feel happy with each piece.

Don't throw it away, connect it and make use of it.

The works of “Dots, Lines and Surfaces” use materials that have nowhere to go.

Only one in the world.

Along with the beauty of traditional Japanese sashiko, the fabrics are imbued with new life and are reborn as one-of-a-kind works of art.

Connect with society without leaving anyone behind.

These works of “Dots, Lines and Surfaces” are created with great care by artists with a variety of backgrounds.

A work filled with warmth and a story.

The energy of each creator's desire to create is delivered to society through the handicraft art of sashiko.
