Honoré

Honoré is first and foremost a story of family, passion, and authentic materials. Founded in Marseille in the 1980s by Annick Lestrohan, the brand was enriched in the early 2000s by the energy of her daughter, Ingrid Giribone, who helped strengthen its identity.

Today, Honoré embodies the Mediterranean art of living on an international scale, with collections that blend artisanal craftsmanship and clean lines, creating timeless pieces designed to transcend trends.

About the brand

Honoré embodies a responsible and personalized approach to production. All of our products are made on a just-in-time basis and are available for pre-order, with deliberately limited stock levels. This approach reflects our commitment to respecting our workshops and artisans, based in Morocco, while minimizing our environmental impact.

Vision & Commitment

Each piece is designed to adapt to the unique tastes and needs of our clients, thanks to a wide range of possible combinations (structures, sizes, colors, etc.). This attention to detail and flexible approach make every Honoré creation truly unique.

A woman with long, wavy blonde hair is seated in a modern wicker chair with a metal frame. She is wearing a light blue button-down shirt and light-colored trousers. She is looking down at a small, dark, geometric table in front of her. On the table are several objects: a tall, slender glass vase, a small bottle, and a decorative object. In the background, there is a large potted plant and a wall with a dark, abstract painting. The overall atmosphere is sophisticated and artistic.

2026 COLLECTION

For the 2026 collection, Honoré continues its exploration of materials, colors, and craftsmanship. Each piece is conceived as a dialogue between texture, light, and function, blending artisanal references, travel-inspired influences, and timeless lines. From indoor to outdoor, the collection creates a cohesive universe where material drives design and color defines character.

Panama pendant light

A rare and delicate material, parchment makes its debut in the 2026 collection. Valued for its naturally ivory hue and the soft light it diffuses, it brings a warm and soothing atmosphere to each piece.

Parchment is expressed through the Bilba floor lamp, featuring a handwoven natural rattan structure topped with a spherical shade, and the Panama pendant light, which combines braided rope and leather around a luminous parchment core.

Through these creations, Honoré explores a gentle light, where material and color engage in dialogue with form and function.

TARTAN VELVET

A pattern steeped in history, tartan makes its debut in the 2026 collection. This interpretation was inspired by a trip to Scotland, where the landscapes, textures, and traditional fabrics sparked a fresh take on this iconic motif.

Tartan velvet, in camel or green, dresses the brand's signature pieces: the Croisette armchair, the Palmer chair, and the Dolores bar stool, adding depth, warmth, and character to their slender metal frames.

Through this material, Honoré revisits a rich textile heritage with a contemporary and timeless interpretation.

PLASTER

Raw and textured, plaster takes center stage in the 2026 collection. This exploration was inspired by a trip to Morocco, along the Ourika Valley, where a potter working with thick, mineral plaster sparked the concept.

Plaster is expressed through the Magma collection: pendant lights, wall lamps, and table lamps whose simple shapes highlight the material's irregularities while diffusing a soft, warm light. It also appears in the Torsade planter, paired with a twisted metal frame, creating a contrast between raw material and delicate lines.

Through these pieces, Honoré asserts a design approach where texture and material take center stage.

camel corduroy Campo side table

Soft and textured, corduroy evokes the sofas of the 1970s, reminiscent of familiar and comforting interiors of the past. This new material makes its debut in the 2026 collection, bringing a more enveloping dimension to the pieces.

It is showcased through the Campo line: the armchair and side table retain their curved lines and iron structure while being upholstered in camel or khaki corduroy. The interplay between velvet, canvas, and metal creates a balance of comfort, texture, and structure. Corduroy also appears on the Dolores bar stool.

Through these interpretations, Honoré offers a warm and contemporary take on velvet, designed for everyday use.

Structuring materials, iron and stainless steel take a central place in the 2026 collection. Iron traces fine, airy lines, while stainless steel has made a strong comeback in design in recent years.

First introduced during the collaboration with Monoprix in March 2025, the Croisette desk asserts itself as a bold creation, alongside the Octave table with its octagonal shape. Both combine an iron structure with a mirrored stainless steel top, offering pieces that are simultaneously sculptural and functional. The Dolores candlesticks play with undulating lines and a modern stainless steel base, while their painted iron arms form an almost dancing silhouette.

Through these pieces, Honoré reaffirms its commitment to metalwork, balancing precision of line with visual lightness.

SMOKED GLASS

Smoked glass, a design trend in recent years, brings depth, lightness, and transparency to Honoré creations.

The Eldorado table is reinvented with a smoked glass top and new iron finishes that allow light to pass through, creating a subtle play of shadows.

The Dolores wall shelf is conceived as a small architectural piece, with a smoked glass surface resting on a metal structure with flowing lines. The Panama table combines braided rope and leather with two smoked glass surfaces, offering both volume and lightness. The Campo side table, suitable for both indoor and outdoor use, pairs epoxy-coated iron with a smoked glass top, balancing durability and aesthetics.

Through these pieces, smoked glass asserts its role as a modern and graphic material, where transparency and light interact with form and function.

STRIPES

Stripes, an iconic motif evoking holidays and seaside living, inspire this season's Eldorado range.

Durable, removable, and water-repellent, the striped fabric evokes relaxation, conviviality, and light, extending the sunny and graphic universe of the collection. The cubic iron frame and the signature Soleil motif animate the space with ever-changing shadows.

The Eldorado armchair retains its comfort and friendly spirit, while the new double bench, a central and entirely new piece, accommodates two people, perfect for enjoying moments of relaxation both indoors and outdoors.

Campo outdoor two-tone armchair

The Campo line returns this season with new two-tone fabrics inspired by the 1970s, blending retro spirit with contemporary design. These color combinations extend the sunny and graphic universe of the Outdoor collection.

The Campo deck chair, armchair, and side table share a cohesive design: water-repellent fabrics, exposed rope, and iron structures with continuous lines. Inspired by the architecture of Eileen Gray and the E1027 villa, these pieces balance form, function, and material.

Through this two-tone approach, Honoré creates an outdoor scenography where color becomes a central element of the design.
