

Do NOT Release Before Jan 10th 2026 – Spring 2026 from Wildlife Garden

From Birdsong to Sea Breeze

---

Swedish design company Wildlife Garden creates decorative and functional pieces for the home and garden – all inspired by the natural world. Their spring 2026 collection moves from dawn's chorus to the sound of waves on the shore, bringing nature's presence into everyday moments.

This spring, new arrivals continue that spirit. The Ripple series expands with a graceful candle holder and an elegant bottle coaster. Two new Multiholks – one in a modern Nordic style, the other echoing a classic brick cottage – offer food and shelter year-round. A new series of cat hooks features five beloved breeds, each hand-carved with playful character. At the table, animal napkin rings and wooden boxes add personality with timeless function. And a new seafife-inspired series of hand-carved keyrings brings the coastline into the everyday.

Architecture for the Garden's Smallest Guests

The Multiholk is Wildlife Garden's signature birdhouse-and-feeder in one: a nesting box in spring and a protected seed feeder in winter.

Price: 64.50 €/pcs

This year, two new designs join the range – Multiholk Modern Nordic, inspired by clean Scandinavian architecture, and Multiholk Brick Cottage, echoing the warmth of traditional red-brick houses. Both bring year-round function with the same focus on harmony, craftsmanship and care for garden birds.

A New Feline Chapter in the Hook Collection

Wildlife Garden's collection of hand-carved hooks now includes more than 80 animal, bird and woodland motifs – each crafted to bring both character and function into the home. At the heart of the feline range is the classic Hook Ginger Cat, now joined by five new faces: black and white cat, tabby cat, Siamese, Norwegian Forest Cat and Persian. And the world's largest cat, the tiger, also makes its debut.

Every hook is carved and painted by hand, turning a practical everyday detail into a small piece of artisanship. Loved for hallways, children's rooms or kitchens, they also make personal and playful gifts.

Where Craft Meets Everyday Life

The new Marine Keyrings Collection presents seven hand-carved ocean motifs – from starfish and scallop shell to sea turtle and seahorse – marking the brand’s first designs inspired by the sea. Each keyring is painted by hand in vivid, water-based colours, turning everyday essentials into small, ocean-themed gifts.

The cherrywood boxes extend Wildlife Garden’s existing range of wooden storage. Crafted entirely from wood with a construction inspired by traditional shrink pots, they are designed to follow the material’s natural movement over time. A sculptural, hand-carved bird on the lid serves as a tactile handle and gives each box a distinctive, decorative character.

This spring, three new characters join the flock: the mandarin duck with its striking plumage, the vibrant mountain bluebird, and the grey wagtail, a small bird known as much for its bright personality as for its graceful movements.

JOYFUL DESIGNS INSPIRED BY NATURE

Be it a delicate detail on a flower, the wildlife in our back gardens, or a dramatic landscape – nature's grandeur is the inspiration for all our products.

It began with an interest in the natural world, birds, and gardens. Our first birdhouses and feeders were born from the idea that they should be a feature that matched the house—and simultaneously attracted the local birdlife. From there, the natural continuation was a series of handmade birds, our beloved collector series—DecoBirds. With time, the range grew. Today, our products span both the home and garden, all characterised by beauty, functionality, and playfulness.

We carefully design each piece, collaborating with select experts, producers, and artisans. To respect the environment, we continually work towards more sustainable production methods and materials and ensure our products have a long lifespan.

Today, an extensive network of retailers sells our products throughout Scandinavia, Europe, United States and Australia.
