Vase object Metamorphosis Testudinaria

Designed by Nature: The vase object 'Metamorphose Testudinaria' by Klatt Objects © Klatt Objects

Detlef Klatt once again demonstrates how fascinating nature itself is with his latest collector's item. The elaborate vase object is dedicated to Testudinaria, a fascinating caudex plant from the warm regions of North and Central America. Its characteristic feature is a large, deeply furrowed tuber, which is why the species is also called Elephant's Foot or Turtle Plant. In nature, the stem can grow up to 50 cm thick. At Klatt Objects, the 'Metamorphosis Testudinaria' measures 45 cm in length and 30 cm in width. It is made from the finest, traditionally produced bone china and sprouts the most beautiful shoots from twelve openings of different sizes.
