VICAL brings furniture with enveloping curves and sculptural forms to Maison&Objet

- VICAL will be present from 15 to 19 January 2026 at Maison&Objet, the international design fair held in Paris.

- VICAL will offer a conceptual interpretation of the home, moving away from the catalogue format and focusing on the creation of different atmospheres.

- The brand will have a 256-square-metre stand located in Hall 4, Stand A5.

From 15 to 19 January 2026, VICAL will participate in Maison&Objet, the leading international showcase for professional design held in Paris, with a 256-square-metre stand, in both home and concept versions, located in Hall 4 – Stand A5. Furniture, lighting and decoration will share the limelight in a completely open space, designed so that visitors can move around freely.

From start to finish, curves will be the dominant feature of the installation, noticeable in both the space and the products on display. They will be reflected in the architecture of the venue through arches and winding lines that will organise the entire interior, and will reappear in most of the furnishings, particularly noticeable in the sofas, characterised by their sinuous and rounded contours.

VICAL will also accommodate two different aesthetic sensibilities within the same space: one will display a more rustic style, while the other will adopt a more modern expression. Consequently, pieces made from natural linen, travertine marble and recycled natural wood will be included, alongside colour-lacquered volumes, newly created rugs, lamps made from sand, sculptural objects of human figures and torsos, and wall lights with built-in lighting.

Instead of following the logic of launching and displaying collections in an orderly fashion, the firm's stand prefers to operate as an undoubtedly eclectic exhibition proposal, where materials, styles and forms intersect, atmospheres are constructed and combinations are explored without the obligation to illustrate a catalogue.
