about mileno

Mileno is a french designer who is working and living in Paris and Rennes (FR). He graduated in product design, after having a position as a mechanical engineer. Mileno's projects evolves around the notion of semi-finished, giving shape to artefacts that are between research prototypes, functional products and sculptural works.

about the exhibited projects

Mileno presents three chairs that are part of his ongoing research on semi-finished products.

Two of the chairs on display come from a series of six. They result from a protocol consisting of assembling reclaimed panels onto an identical beam that serves as the backbone of the chair. These assemblages are unified by a chrome finish.

The third chair in this exhibition stems from another project, which investigates how an inclination can be integrated into the thickness of the backrest.
