A new Coffee Table

A new way to rethink space

"FRENCH FRIES"
A design by Yves Macheret for ENTRELACS
First casting in March 2026

«I like to challenge perceptions, with a coffee table that defies its conventional purpose."*

In creating FRENCH FRIES, Yves Macheret explores for ENTRELACS the unexpected, where perception flirts with the unreal. The purpose here is not proposing a coffee table but a way to rethink the space around dialogues and shared moments on a living room.

This design work of art reshapes the space.

Available in 7 removable modules, it offers versatility and adaptability, allowing you to arrange them according to your spatial vision or the space available.
Crafted from cast bronze in the family foundry in France, every individual form reveals a richly textured surface, both raw and sensual. The patina is warm, deep and features subtle variations that evolve beautifully with the light. The proportions are sculptural and deliberate, giving the piece a balanced, bold yet never heavy appearance. The underside of the table has been treated with the same care, featuring a finish of fine leather, specifically tailored for this piece. Nothing has been left to chance. From the finest finishing details to the way the piece is handled and transported, everything has been carefully considered.

This table represents a long-awaited evolution towards a 'Collectible Design' aesthetic within the ENTRELACS collection, combining art and functionality in a confident yet timeless manner.

“Mentorship Award | Future Talent”

This piece has been first presented in May 4th 2026 at the Venice Biennale, during the BEL OUVRAGE event, a French Collectible Design curation from Carole de Bona.

A professional jury has awarded Yves Macheret’s work, saying it highlights an emerging approach that embodies a unique vision and a potential for development.

It aims to support a talented artist whose work demonstrates rigour, sensitivity and an ability to place craftsmanship within a contemporary context.
