BRANDS

Zwiesel Glas

Zwiesel Glas stands for sophisticated glassware and tableware that enhances every special moment. The brand combines over 150 years of glass craftsmanship from the Bavarian Forest with expressive, contemporary design—in the form of both handcrafted one-of-a-kind pieces and machine-made series crafted from Tritan® crystal glass. The collection includes drinking glasses, decanters, and vases that can be combined to create harmonious table settings. The unmistakable sound of the glasses—"Sounds like Zwiesel"—embodies genuine hospitality: the coming together, toasting, and sharing that is just as much a part of fine dining as it is at the family dinner table.

Schott Zwiesel

Schott Zwiesel is the gateway to the world of high-quality glassware and stands for reliable glass quality in daily use. The brand combines clear, timeless forms with the attractive properties of Tritan® crystal glass. Thanks to their high break resistance and dishwasher safety, Schott Zwiesel glasses are ideal wherever glassware is in constant use—in bars, restaurants, hotels, and in private settings. The brand claim "love everyday" sums up the brand's promise: glasses that work every day, feel good in the hand, and mark the step into the premium class.

Fortessa

Fortessa embodies contemporary tableware from the United States—featuring clean designs and high-quality materials and craftsmanship. Since 1993, the brand has been developing tableware, cutlery, and accessory collections for everyday use and upscale dining. The products can be found in over 88 percent of Forbes Travel Guide 4- and 5-star hotels in North America. Particularly noteworthy is the wide variety of materials—from stoneware and porcelain to bone china, as well as proprietary materials like Fortaluxe®—and cutlery in various stainless steel finishes and designs. The brand's claim, "life will taste different," is an invitation to experience tableware in a new way.

Eisch

Eisch embodies understated luxury and timeless elegance from the Bavarian Forest—shaped by a family tradition that has grown over generations, with roots dating back to the 17th century. To this day, the name stands for living craftsmanship, international glass art, and a connection to the region.

With great care and elaborate manual finishing, such as with real gold and platinum decorations, "quiet luxury" is created: stylish glasses and decanters, artistic glass objects, and the innovative SENSISPLUS collections: A treatment of the finished glass, guarded as a family secret, ensures that when drinking, one can perceive more of what is already inherent in the wine—without altering it itself. Thus, the bouquet and flavor of complex wines can be experienced even more intensely—ideal for fine dining, top-tier hospitality, and an exclusive home.

TRADITIONAL, INNOVATIVE, AND SUSTAINABLE

Since its founding, ZWIESEL FORTESSA has stood not only for a love of craftsmanship and design, but also for sustainability and innovation—both in its own manufacturing and among its long-standing production partners. The traditional manufacturer relies on resource-efficient processes, consistent quality, responsible business practices throughout the entire value chain, and innovative technologies. In the glass sector, the industry leader impresses with its Tritan® glass range, which ensures durable and eco-friendly products. For glass production, the company utilizes a combination unique in the premium segment of the glass industry: its own glass manufacturing facility—one of the largest and best in the world, located in Hungary—and the largest machine-based production facility in Germany.

VISION

ZWIESEL FORTESSA aims to become the world's leading provider of tabletop products, collections, and concepts in the premium segment, with a particular focus on quality, design, and innovation. The company exports to more than 160 countries and has subsidiaries in the United States, France, Hungary, Spain, China, Japan, and India.
